

Liam Gallagher's son and Ringo Starr's grandson in court over affray charge

The grandson of Sir Ringo Starr and Liam Gallagher's son both appeared in court recently following an alleged altercation in a branch of Tesco. I can't help but wonder how a conversation between the two rockers would have gone...

Ringo & Liam*FX: Sound of phone ringing and then being answered

LIAM: Yeah, this is Liam, roll with it.

RINGO: Peace and love Liam, it's me.

LIAM: Thomas! How's it going man, alright?

RINGO: We've been through this Liam, it's not Thomas, it's Ringo. Peace and love, peace and love.

LIAM: Whatever man, you're not fooling me. How are Percy and Toby?

RINGO: Listen, we haven't got time for this, what's going on with your lad and my grandson? Peace and love, peace and love.

LIAM: Yeah, yeah, yeah, we'll talk about them man, but first, (beat) how are Annie and Clarabelle?

RINGO: Liam, this is a serious situation, they're going to be up in front of the Crown Court soon. Peace and love.

LIAM: They'll be fine man, it was just banter that got a bit out of hand. You know, like that time Gordon made you drive miles out of your way, after you said he was lazy and your wheels started burning on the tracks.

RINGO: Liam, please. It said something about them 'windmilling?' Do you know what that is? Peace and love.

LIAM: You mean like the windmill you drive past at the start of every episode?

RINGO: Liam, I was also the drummer in the Beatles you know. Peace and love, peace and love.

LIAM: Yeah man, mad respect. I loved John Lennon me, man.

RINGO: Good, so can we talk about the boys. My Jason's worried sick about what might happen to his lad. Peace and love.

LIAM: It will be fine man; they've pleaded not guilty. Unlike that time you were guilty of leaving the guard at the station, Clarabelle tried to tell you, but you wouldn't listen to her would you. Silly old Thomas!

RINGO: Oh, this is pointless. Please, we really need to discuss what might happen. Peace and love, peace and love.

LIAM: Okay fine, sorry man. (longer beat) Maybe we could ask the Fat Controller?
